

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

INDEX

TO THE

TWENTYFIRST VOLUME

OF THE

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

A.

- Aborigines* of America, remarks of Major Long, relating to, 186—their monuments, 186, 187—erroneous to attribute to them, a common character, 187—their distinctions, 188—their cannibalism, ib.
- Admiralty* jurisdiction established in the British Colonies, on its appropriate principles, 124.
- Adsonville*, an American Novel, reviewed, 99.
- Alaman*, Lucas, a statesman of Mexico, 432—birth and education, ib.—deputy to the Cortes at Madrid, 433—promotes the working of the Mexican mines, ib.—appointment to office in the republic, ib.—his estimate of the importance of the mining interests, ib.—his last report to Congress, 441.
- Alligators*, in Colombia, 160—mode of hunting them by the Indians, 161—their food, and mode of taking it, ib.
- America*, Summary View of, by an Englishman, noticed, 453—its comparative fairness and liberality, ib.—character and contents of the work, 454.
- America, South*, its political progress, 153, 154—present state and prospects of its republics, 154, 156—of their histories, 162, 163—drawback on the favorable operation of their constitutions, 167.
- Antiquarian* researches by E. Hoyt, 234.
- Aost*, Leper of, translated from Le-maistre, noticed, 243.
- Authorship* of popular works, frequent difficulties in deciding, 388—of the classical writings of antiquity, 389.
- Avarice*, regarded by Dr Brown, as a modification of the love of power, 23—this opinion controverted, ib.—its final cause, 23, 24.

B.

- Bacon*, Leonard, his Plea for Africa, 462
- Bacon*, Lord, his definition of Poesy, 217.
- Bancroft's* edition of Jacob's Latin Reader, 246.
- Barnard*, Samuel, his Polyglot grammar, 464.
- Bar*, of Suffolk, 225 et seqq.—English, its declining state and deficiency of talent, 387.

- Bible*, its character as an intellectual production, 266, 268—compared with the writings of Homer, 267.
- Blackstone*, Sir W., his opinion of the jurisdiction of the King, in questions between his Provinces in America, 121—received by the colonists as an expositor of their law, 127.
- Blanco White*, his Spanish Varieties, a periodical work, noticed, 467—his former publications, ib.—the present devoted to the affairs of South America, 468—commended, ib.
- Bode*, Geo. Hen. his dissertation on the Orphic poetry, 393—his objects, ib.—size of his work, ib.—the prolegomena, 394—his opinion of the period of the Orphic poetry, 395—of the country of it, ib.—of its nature, 396—his character as a scholar, 397—emigration to the United States, ib.
- Bogotá*, present capital of Colombia, 162, 167—its Congress Halls described by Capt. Cochrane, 167.
- Bolívar*, cited, 165—dictator of Colombia, 166—his brilliant reputation, 171—birth and education, ib.—devoted to South American Independence, ib.—his zeal and efforts, 172—his character, 173—his munificence to the Schools of his native city, 442.
- Boston*, of the establishment of an Academy of Fine Arts in, 460.
- Brainard*, John G. C. his occasional pieces of poetry, reviewed, 217—his character as a poet, 218—specimens of his poetry, 218, 219, 220, 221—his humorous descriptions, 222, 223, 224—superiority of his graver pieces, 224.
- Brown*, Thomas, M. D. his Lectures on the Philosophy of the human mind, reviewed, 19—does not define Emotions, ib.—does not notice the topical peculiarity of the Emotions, 20—arranges them in their relation to time, ib.—luminous exposition of their final causes, 22—lectures on the emotions highly commended, 23—his opinion of the nature of avarice controverted, ib.—his ethical system, 25—test of moral right and wrong, ib.—contends for the uniformity of the moral sense among mankind, 26—his examination of other moral theories, ib.—defects of his own, 27—and their consequences, 27, 28—statement of his theory amended, 28—suggests the true theory himself, 30—his distribution of the duties, ib.—lectures upon them commended, ib.—his demonstration of the existence and attributes of God, 31, 32—argument for the immortality of the soul, 32, 33—examined, 34—adds no strength to the argument, 34, 35—some notices of his character, manners, and principles, 36, 38—his personal appearance, 38—mode of lecturing, ib.—his prominent capacity, that of an analyst, 40—minuteness of his investigations, 40, 41—effects of the study of his writings upon the mind, 41, 42—his warmth of moral sentiment, 42—his testimonials to the truth of Christianity, ib.—his style, 43—its merits and defects, 43 to 45—his poetry, 43—his occasional obscurity 45, 46—his general character as an author, 46, 47—his contributions to natural theology, 47—the general plan of his lectures, 48—his doctrine of cause and effect, &c. criticised.
- Buckminster*, Rev. Mr., 448.
- Bull fights*, of the Spanish, the prevailing national amusement, 62—their history, 62, 63—formed part of religious ceremonies and festivals, 63—their decline during the last half of the 18th century, 64—reestablished by Joseph Bonaparte, ib.—and continued by the Cortes and Ferdinand, 64, 65—their probable origin, &c. 65—preparations for them, 66, 67—description, 67 to 74—the amusement of all classes, ib.—their physical and moral influence, 74, 75—sources of the pleasure arising from such exhibitions, 75, 78.
- Burton*, Asa, D. D. his Essays on some of the first principles of Metaphysics, Ethics and Theology, noticed, 232.
- Byron*, Lord, his character and writings, 300—his acquaintance with Dallas, ib.—with Medwin, 301—his degradation in the last years of - his life, 302—his moral state, 303—his character and opinions in youth, 304, 305—his craving passion, 306—his first publication, ib.—its character, 307—specimens, 307 to 310—effects of its review in the Edinburgh Review, upon him, 311—his revenge, ib.—defects of his satire, 312—his admiration of Pope, 314 his misanthropy and disgust of life, 316, 317—his travels, 318—Childe Harold, ib.—specimens, 318 to 321—causes of its popularity, 323—its character, 324—his profligate life in London, 325—his marriage and separation, ib.—persecutes his wife, ib.—his infidelity, 326—criticisms of his poetry, 328 to 332—superiority of the two last cantos of Childe Harold, 332—causes of this, ib.—specimens and criticism, 333 et seqq.—his descriptions of nature, 337—examples, ib. et seqq.—narrow range of his excellence as a poet, 342—contrast between the grandeur of conception and the poverty of sentiment, 342 to 344—his deficiency in consistent thinking, 345—unsuccessful delineation of his heroes, 346—his female characters, 347—influence of the character of the age upon that of his poetry, 348—one of the causes of his popularity, 350—egotism of his works, ib.—the interest imparted by it, evanescent, 351—his situation during the last years of his life, 352—his expedition to Greece, 353—his conduct on the death of Shelley, 354—his letter to Mr Sheppard, 355—his Cain and Don Juan, 356—their character, 357—estimate of the influence of his writings, 358.

- Chase*, Judge, his opinion on the common law of the United States, 129—use made of this opinion, 130—its alleged consequences, ib.
- Chaucer*, his obligations to Italian literature, 191.
- Chinese* mode of catching ducks, from Buffon, 161.
- Circello*, Marquis di, his diplomatic intercourse with Mr Pinkney, 273 et seqq.
- Claims* of United States upon European powers, for spoliations, 269, 270—their importance to the national prosperity, and honor, 270—manner in which they have been treated by foreign powers, 271—on Naples, ib.—its origin, 272—diplomatic intercourse with relation to, 273 to 278—on Holland, 278—its origin, ib.—discussed, 279 et seqq.—arguments against these claims refuted, 290—nations and not their rulers, responsible, 291—claims for French spoliations, 296.
- Clarke*, Mr, his Naval History of the United States, 2—account of the exploits of Captain Mugford, 5—quoted, 9.
- Cochrane*, Capt. Charles Stuart, his travels in Colombia, reviewed, 153—objects of his tour, 156—character of his work, 157—account of travelling apparatus, 158, 159—his annoyances, 159, 160—his account of alligators, 162—history of Colombia, ib.—its plagiarisms, ib.—his description of the Congress Halls of Bogota, 167, 168—visits the heads of departments, 169, 170,
- Colman*, Rev. Dr, 444.
- Colombia*, travels in, by Capt. Cochrane, 153—his history of, 162—proposed history of Mr Restrepo, 163—extent and contents of the republic, 163, 164—boundaries, ib.—its political and natural advantages, ib.—its system of government, 164, 165—deviations from that of the United States, 165—formation of its constitution, 166—its revolutionary worthies, Bolivar, 171—Sucre, &c. 173—Montilla, 174—its present favorable prospects, 175—its commerce and commercial regulations, 175, 176—its laws relating to slavery, and to public schools, 176, 177.
- Colombo*, Domenico, father of Columbus, his occupation, 410—his family, ib.—removal to Savona, 412.
- Colon*, name assumed by Columbus in Spain, 410.
- Colonies* of England in America, origin of their jurisprudence, 106, 107—nature of their government by the mother country, 107—received the common law, ib.—various stages of its improvement, 109—their various circumstances and situations modified, but did not cause a departure from its proper principles, 109, 110

- their jurisprudence to be investigated in investigating the subject of American common law, 110, 111—probability that they possessed a common system of polity, 111—reasons for this belief, 111, 112—authority of Parliament over them, 111 to 113—they contended for the existence of a general civil constitution for them, 115—liability of their common law to alteration, 117—the power of administering justice in them, an emanation from the crown, 119—royal authority limited and questioned, 119, 120—appeals of colonial courts to the king in council, 121—origin, nature, and extent of his jurisdiction over them, 121 et seq.—their admiralty jurisdiction, 124—want of a court of equity, 125—contemplated court of appeal, 125.
- Colonisation*. Society, its Colonial Journal and Eighth Annual Report noticed, 230—Mr Bacon's Sermon on its advantages, 462.
- Columbus*, influence of his discovery upon the world, 398—its immense importance, 399—doubts as to his place of nativity, ib.—controversy on this subject, 400—claimed by Pradello, 401—by Cuccaro, 403—evidence for his birth at Genoa, 406 to 410—changes his name in Spain, 410—his birth in 1447, 411—employment of his youth, 411—his early devotion to the sea, 411—exploits of his early life, 412—voyage to Frisland and the polar circle, 412—his engagement with a Venetian fleet, 413—and narrow escape, ib.—repairs to Lisbon, remains and marries there, 414—his voyages and fame as a navigator, ib.—his struggles in accomplishing the discovery of America, 415—his kindness to his father, 416—repairs to Spain, 417—his fortunes there, ib.—his extraordinary reverses, ib.—return from his fourth voyage, ib.—reception by Ferdinand, 418—his reception and treatment by him, ib.—his death, 419—his glory unparalleled, 420—his person, habits, and character, ib.—his sons, 421 et seq.—final extinction of the male line of his descendants, 424—history and account of his codex, ib.—its true title, 426—documents which it contains, 426 to 428—its importance, 429.
- Columbus*, Bartholomew, brother of the discoverer, 424.
- Columbus*, Diego, elder son of the discoverer of America, 414—inherits his titles and claims, 422—prosecutes his right, ib.—his partial success, 423—difficulties with Pasamonte, ib.—death, ib.—his family, 424.
- Columbus*, Ferdinand, son of the discoverer of America, 417—his learning and works, 421—his life of his father, ib.—loss of the original Spanish copy, ib.—unaccounted for, 422.
- Columbus*, Giacomo, brother of the discoverer, 423.
- Columbus*, the younger, a celebrated corsair, 411.
- Common Law* of England the foundation of American law, 377—constitution of the United States presupposes it, ib.—declared to continue in force by many of the states, 378—its nature and origin, 379, 380—its mode of improvement, 380—illustrated by decisions relating to oaths of witnesses, 381—objections considered, 382. See Law.
- Cooper*, Rev. Dr Samuel, notices of his life, character, and usefulness, 445, 446, 447.
- Crafts*, William, his Address before the Palmetto Society, noticed, 464, quoted, ib.
- Cuccaro*, a castle in Montferrat, its claim to be the birthplace of Columbus, 401—origin of claim, 402—disproved, 403 to 405.
- D.
- Dallas*, R. C. his character and works, 300—his acquaintance with Lord Byron, ib.—quoted, 316—attempts to convert Lord Byron, 326.
- Da Ponte*, his observations on an article in the North American Review, reviewed, 189—his complaints of the reviewer, 190—his objection to the view of the influence of Italy on English letters, 191—to the treatment of Tasso, 195—his panegyric of that poet, 195, 196—his defence of Petrarch,

- 198—further complaints against the reviewer, 204, 207, 208, 210—strictures on the treatment of Metastasio, 211—his panegyric intemperate, 213—his complaints unfounded, 215.
- Dawson*, Moses, his memoirs of General Harrison, 248.
- Duponceau*, Peter S. his dissertation on the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, 104—his discourse at the opening of the Law Academy, ib.—quoted, 113—his remark on the administration of English law, 116—on the admiralty, 124—his doctrine of the common law of the United States, 131—made up of the common law of England and of the colonies, 134 et seqq.
- Duties*, distribution of, by Dr Brown, 30—duties to God, 31—consideration of the proofs of his existence and attributes, 31, 32—duties to ourselves, 32—immortality of the soul, 32 to 36.
- Duty* on the exportation of gold and silver in Mexico, discussed by a committee of Congress, 430—former views on this subject, ib.—objects of such a duty twofold, 435—both shown to be fallacious, ib. 436—other objections to the duty, 440.
- E.
- Economy, Political*, new science of, 432—its effects on commerce, industry, and national prosperity, ib.
- Edgeworth*, Miss, her influence in forming the public taste for novels, 179.
- Edinburgh Review*, style of its criticism, 311—its review of Lord Byron's first work, 311.
- Emotions*, according to Dr Brown, in their nature incapable of being defined, 19—their corporeal seat, 20—Dr Brown neglects to notice this, ib.—mind not the immediate seat of them, ib.—their division by Dr Brown into immediate, retrospective, and prospective, ib.—their subdivisions, 21—their relation to our desires, fears, and passions, 22—their final causes, 22.
- English literature*, its obligations to the Italian, 191, 192—lessened by the reformation, 192—influenced by the French, 192, 193—deficiency of researches into its history, 215.
- England*, its great accession of power from machinery, 152—state and prospect of its system of government, 152, 153.
- Entomology*, American, by Thomas Say, noticed, 251.
- Ethical system* of Dr Brown, his test of moral right and wrong, 25—its uniformity among mankind, 26—liable to be modified, ib.—defects of the theory, 27—and consequences, 28—amended, 28, 29—true theory subsequently suggested by Dr Brown, 30.
- Eustis*, William, presents the American claim against Holland, 278—its reception, 279—its renewal, ib.—his reply to the argument of Baron de Nagell.
- Everett*, Alexander H. his controversy with Baron de Nagell, 281 to 289.
- Everett*, Edward, his manuscript of papers relating to Columbus, 429.
- Expedition* to the sources of St Peters river, &c. narrative of, by Major Long, reviewed, 178—niggardly policy of the Government with regard to it, 178, 179—outline of what was accomplished by it, 179 et seqq.—quoted, 180, 182, 184—important service rendered by it, 185—researches relating to the aborigines, 186—proofs discovered of their cannibalism, 188—character of the work, 189.
- F.
- Ferdinand*, king of Spain, his cruel and unjust treatment of Columbus, 418—of Diego Columbus, 422—his death, 423.
- France*, position of liberal writers in, 142—not benefited by the repeal of law for censure of the press, ib.—strength of the royal government in, 143—state of liberal opinions and liberty in, 144 to 146—claims of the United States against, 296—of those prior to 1800, ib.—mode in which they have been disposed of, 296 to 298—valid against the government of the United States, 299.
- Frisland*, mysterious island of, 412—voyage of Columbus to, 412.
- Frisbie*, Professor, remarkable coincidence of opinion with Dr Brown, on the theory of morals, 27—quoted 29

G.

Genoa, its claim to be the birthplace of Columbus, 405—proved, by the opinions of authors, 406—by documents, 407—and by the acts and writings of Columbus himself, 408—involvement in the Mediterranean warfare of the 15th and 16th centuries, 411.

Geology of the country travelled over by Major Long's expedition, 183, 184—lectures on, by Dr Van Rensselaer, noticed, 240.

Germany, its situation according to M. de Sismondi, 146—his opinions refuted, 146, 147—state of its petty principalities, 147—its influence in the overthrow of Napoleon, 148—character of its people, and gradual consolidation, 148, 149.

Gold and silver, their importance to Mexico, 430—proposal to raise the duty on their exportation, ib.—formerly esteemed the true source of wealth, 430 to 432—light in which they are now regarded, 433—report to the Mexican Congress with regard to them, 434—expediency of a duty upon their exportation discussed, as a means of revenue and for the purpose of retaining them in the country, 435, 436.

Goldsborough, Charles W. his United States Naval Chronicle reviewed, 1—his account of Revolutionary events meagre and desultory, 2—of the difficulties with France, and Tripolitan war more full, ib.—ends with the Tripolitan war, 18.

God, existence of and attributes, Dr Brown's demonstration of, 31, 32.

Goslington Shadow, a novel reviewed, 102—its plot and characters, 102—acquaintance which it evinces in the author of Scottish character and manners, 103.

Government, ancient forms of not sufficient for state of things in modern times, 152—forms which have existed, 362—government of the will, ib.—government of the law, 363—operation of these forms in the division of men into two great parties, 364.

H.

Hamburgh, bank of, plundered by Marshal Davoust, 271—refunded by Louis the Eighteenth, ib.— its case considered by Baron de Nagell, 286—refutation by Mr Everett, 271.

Harrison, W. H. Major General, memoirs of, by Moses Dawson, noticed, 248.

Hermann, his examination of the probable antiquity of the poems ascribed to Orpheus, 390.

Hobomok, a tale of early times, reviewed, 86—its story faulty, 86, 87—characters well drawn, 87—quoted, 87 to 90—delineation of Indian character, 90—quoted, 90, 94—its reputation injured by its catastrophe, 94, 95.

Holland, origin of the claim of the United States against, 278—its treatment of the claim for indemnity, 279—independence of its government under Louis Bonaparte, 280—diplomatic discussion of the claim, 279 et seqq.—arguments on which the refusal of indemnity is founded, 290—its struggles for freedom, 293—erected into a kingdom by Napoleon, ib.—united with Belgium into the kingdom of the Netherlands, 294, 295.

Hoyt, E. antiquarian researches, noticed, 234—his notices of Indian wars, 235, 236—of witchcraft, 236.

Hull, General, acquitted in the public opinion, 450—his revolutionary character and services, ib.

I.

Immortality of the soul, Dr Brown's argument for, &c. 32 to 36.

Italian literature its influence over the English, 191—lessened by the reformation, 192—revived in our own age, 195—its relation to that of Spain, 204—its feuds, 213—of the difficulty of estimating it by foreigners, 214.

Italy, its political situation, 149—tendency to union of purpose in its different states, 149, 150.

J.

Jacobs, Frederick, his Latin Reader edited by Bancroft, noticed, 246.

James the First, of England, designed a complete codification for his colonies, 107.

Jones, John Paul, appointed a lieutenant in the American navy, 6—his actions in command of the Providence and Milford, 6, 7—sketch of his life, (note) 7, 8—his engagement with the Serapis and the Countess of Scarborough, 11, 12—anecdote of, 12.

Jurisprudence of the United States, its origin in the institutions of the mother country, 106—English, its mode of administration, 115—its influence on the colonial, 119 et seqq—actually existed in the colonies, 127.

Jurisdiction, royal, its origin, nature and extent over the American colonies, 119 et seqq.

K.

Keating, W. H. compiler of the narrative of Major Long's second expedition, 178—description of scenery, quoted, 184—character of his work, 189.

L.

Lakes Superior and Winnipeg, 180, 182.

Lampedosa, island of, suggested as a compensation for the American claims on Naples, 277.

Landlord, American, tales of, 100.

Law, Common, of the United States, derived from that of England, 106 —causes of its departure from the English founded in its very nature, 108—received by the colonies at various stages of improvement, 109
—its diversities in the different colonies indicated no departure from its proper principles, ib.—influence of various circumstances in modifying it, 110—its intimate connexion with colonial jurisprudence, 111—claimed by the colonies as the basis of a general civil constitution, 115—causes of its varieties, ib.—
its mode of administration in England, 115, 116—consequences, 116 —its liabilities to alteration in the colonies, 117—its connexion with their jurisprudence, in which its elements are to be sought, 126—
English claimed by Congress, 127 —decided by jurists to have been brought over by the colonists, 128, 129—its existence presupposed by the constitution, 131—opinion of Mr Duponceau with regard to it, stated and examined, ib. et seqq.
—its essential improvement in the United States, 137—necessity of its existence, 139. See Common Law.

Law, its two schools of construction,
104, 105.

Law Reports, English, reason for their circulation in the United States, 385—those of Sergeant and Low-ber noticed, ib.—contain some superfluous matter, 386.

Lawrence, Thomas Beach, his address at the eleventh exhibition of the American Academy of Fine Arts noticed, 455—quoted, 461.

Lawyers, in Suffolk, historical sketch of, 225 to 227—their professional prospects, 227—their respectability, 229.

Lemaistre, translation of his Leper of Aost, noticed, 243.

Leper of Aost, noticed, 243.

Leprosy, its nature and consequences,
243.

Liberal principles in government, their influence in England and America, 251, 252.

Lindsley, Philip, President of Cumberland College, his inaugural address noticed, 237—quoted, 237 to 239.

Lisbon, the favorite resort of Italian adventurers in the 15th century, 414.

Long, Stephen H. his second expedition, 178—his zeal and industry commended, 179—his remarks on the military features of the country between lakes Superior and Winnipeg, 182.

Louis Bonaparte, his independence as king of Holland, 280—still respected by his former subjects, 282
—universally beloved when king, 293.

Louisiana treaty, its provisions, 298.

Lowber, John, his English common law Reports, 377.

M.

Madrid, its Prado or public walk, 58,
61—its bull fights, 62 et seqq.

Man, changes in his social and political condition in the present age, 360.

Mansfield, Lord, his doctrine on questions concerning seignories, 122—creator of English commercial law, 384.

Marshall, Chief Justice, his influence on American jurisprudence, 128—quoted, 128, 129.

Medwin, Capt. Thomas, authenticity of his conversations of Lord Byron.

- questioned, 301—his general credibility probable, ib.—grounds for this opinion 301, 302—his description of Lord Byron at the funeral of Shelley, 353.
- Metastasio*, monotonous sweetness of his poetry, 211—opinions of critics with regard to it, 211, 212.
- Metternich*, Prince, his character and influence, 148.
- Mexico*, products of its mines of precious metals, 430—report of a committee of its congress on an increase of tax on exportation of gold and silver, 430. 434—liberal and sound principles of the report, 437—interest of the nation to encourage exportation of coin, 438—beneficial influence of free commerce upon it, 440, 441—devotion of the government to the best interests of the nation, 440—restoration of Colleges, 441—establishment of schools, 442—laudable efforts to preserve ancient documents, ib.—improvement in its manufactures, 443—its cheering prospects, ib.
- Mind*, human, philosophy of the. See Brown.
- Minerals*, American, Dr Robinson's catalogue of, 233.
- Mississippi*, valley of the, 114.
- Money*, real value of, how determined, 437—effects of a restrictive duty on its exportation, ib.
- Moultrie*, Fort, defence of, 464.
- Murat*, king of Naples, 271—recognised by all powers but England, 272—negotiations with Austria and England, 272—depredations on American property, ib.—popular at Naples, 291.
- N.
- Nagell*, Baron de, his refusal to acknowledge the claim of the United States upon Holland, 279—his singular argument in reply to Mr Eustis, 280—his controversy with Mr Everett, 281 to 289.
- Naples*, claim of the United States against, 271—its origin, 272—negotiation of Mr Pinkney with relation to, 273—its reception by the government and result, 273 to 276—grounds of its decision, 278.
- Napoleon*, his reproof of Louis as king of Holland 280—erects Holland into a kingdom, 293—decline of his power in 1813, 294.
- Nations*, growth of a common interest between them, 361—their moral influence upon one another, ib.
- Naval Chronicle*. See Goldsborough.
- Navy* of the United States, its early history neglected, 2—first fleet equipped by congress in 1775, 5—its history during the revolutionary war, 5 to 12—during the contest with France 12 to 14—before Tripoli 14 to 18—brilliancy of its subsequent achievements, 19.
- Netherlands*, king of, his title to the throne, 282—founded on an act of arbitrary power, ib.—his kingdom, how created, 294, 295—his share of the French indemnity, 296.
- New England*, Witch of, 96.
- New York*, laws of, Remarks on their projected revision, noticed, 249—its Academy of Fine Arts, 459.
- Novels*, American, their former rarity and present abundance, 79—causes of this change, ib.—Scottish, their characteristics, 80 to 83—of a kind easily written 83—several American reviewed, 83, 104—deficiency in the selection of their mottoes, 103.
- O.
- Oaths* of witnesses, decisions relating to, 381—illustrate the improvement of the common law, ib.
- O'Halloran*, an Irish tale, reviewed, 101—its subject better than its execution, 102.
- Orange*, House of, its elevation to the hereditary stadtholdership, 293—Prince of, embarks for Holland in 1813, 294—made king of the Netherlands, 295.
- Orpheus*, poems ascribed to, 388—opinions of critics relating to, 389—their probable antiquity, ib.—how decided by Hermann, 390—period to which they have severally been assigned, 390 to 392.
- P.
- Palfrey*, John G. Rev. his sermon noticed, 444
- Parliament*, early jealousy of its authority, among the American colonists, 111, 112—nature and extent of this authority, 112 to 114.
- Passions*, not particularly classed by Dr Brown, 22.
- Peep* at the Pilgrims, an American novel, reviewed, 95—its character, 95, 96—quoted, 96.

- Peninsula*, Recollections of the, 52—quotations from, 52, 53, 54, 55. 58—character of the work, 58.
- Perkins*, Samuel, history of the late war noticed, 449.
- Petrarch*, his affectation as a poet, 198—specimens of his poetry, 199—criticisms of Italian writers, 200—his age accountable for his defects, 201—his character and services to the cause of letters, 203.
- Pownall*, Governor, his remark with regard to the origin of the common law of the colonies, 115—and of its vagueness and liability to alteration, 117, 118.
- Philosophy* of the human mind. See Brown.
- Pilgrims*, Peep at the, 95.
- Pinkney*, William, his mission to Naples, 272—his diplomatic intercourse with the Neapolitan government, 273 to 276.
- Pinkney*, Edward C. volume of his poems reviewed, 369—his Italy quoted, ib.—other specimens of his poetry, 371, 372—his Rodolph, 373—his character as a poet, 375—well acquainted with old English poetry, ib.—moral tone of his poetry, 376—imitation of Byron, ib.
- Poetry*, its change of character in the present age, 348—had become mechanical, ib.—influence of the character of the present age upon it, ib. et seqq.
- Poets*, contemporary, their besetting sins, 217.
- Political Economy*. See Economy.
- Politics*, European, 141—France, 142—Germany, 146—Italy, 149—Spain, 150—England, 151, 152.
- Pope*, his character as a satirist, 313—his conceded rank in his age, 314.
- Portugal*, its career of discovery and conquest, 414—sought by Columbus, ib.
- Pradello*, its claim to be the birth-place of Columbus, 401.
- Prado*, or public walk of Madrid, 58—description of, 59 to 61.
- Preble*, Commodore, 11—assumes the command of the Mediterranean squadron in 1803, 14—bombards Tripoli, &c. 15 to 18.
- R.
- Recollections* of the Peninsula, 52.
- Refugee*, the, an American novel, reviewed, 83—its plot, 84—exceptionable in relation to history, ib.—full of anachronisms, ib.—unsuccessful in delineation of character, 85—style excessively bad, ib.—faults of the plot, 86.
- Restrepo*, his proposed history of Colombia, 163.
- Revenue*, principles on which it is to be raised, 435—consequences of excessive duties upon, 436.
- Review* of the efforts and progress of nations during the last twentyfive years, 141.
- Robinson*, Samuel, Dr, his catalogue of American minerals noticed, 233.
- S.
- Saratoga*, a tale of the Revolution, reviewed, 98—its character, 99.
- Say*, Thomas, his appendix to Major Long's Narrative, 189—his American Entomology noticed, 251—beauty and elegance of its execution, ib.—his scientific character and exertions, ib.
- Schoolcraft*, Mr, corrections of some of his statements by Major Long, 186.
- Sergeant*, Thomas, brief sketch of national judiciary powers prior to the Federal Constitution, 104—his account of the origin of the superintending power of the king over colonial tribunals, 120—his English common law reports, 377. 385.
- Sismondi*, M. de, his review of the last twentyfive years, 141—his embarrassment in speaking of the state of France, 144—his view of the state of Germany, 146—controverted, 146 to 149—of Italy, 149—of Spain, 150—of other nations, 151.
- Society*, American Colonisation, its journal and eighth annual report noticed, 230.
- Soul*, immortality of the, Dr Brown's arguments for, 32, 33—examined, 34.
- Spain*, national character of, strongly marked and picturesque, 58—national amusements of, ib.—melancholy state of, 150—probable fate, ib.—its colonial possessions, 150, 151.
- Stael*, Madame de, her compliment to Alexander of Russia, 145—her character as a critic, 216.

Sullivan, William, his address to the members of the bar of Suffolk noticed, 225—its value, ib.—quoted, ib.

T.

Tales of an American Landlord, reviewed, 100—intended to have a moral and religious effect, ib.—

Tasso, his character as a poet, 195, 196—criticisms of Italian writers, 197—his tribute to Columbus, 415.

Thacher, Rev. Mr, 447.

Travellers, English, in the United States, 453—their abuse and folly, ib.

Tripoli, war with the United States, 14—bombarded by Commodore Preble, 15, 16—peace concluded, 18.

Truxton, Commodore, his engagement with the Insurgente, and with the Vengeance, 13.

U.

United States, their early naval history neglected, 2—efforts in their colonial state, 2, 3—their naval history during the revolution, 3 to 12—commencement of the navy in 1794, 12—naval engagements with the French, in 1799, 13—war with Tripoli, 14 to 18—their claims for commercial spoliations, 269, 270—relations sustained with the countries of Europe, 364—influence of their example, 366—laws by which the people of, are governed, 377—founded on the English common law, ib.

V.

Van Rensselaer, Jeremiah, his lectures on Geology noticed, 240.

Verplanck, Gulian C. his address before the American academy of Fine Arts, 459.

Voltaire, his character as a critic, 216.

W.

War, the liquidator of claims between European nations, 269—ceased to be so to the United States, 269, 270.

Washington, a winter in, a novel, 99.

Waverley, author of, influence of his novels upon public taste, 79, 80—their characteristics, 80 et seqq.—ease and beauty of their style, 83.

Wayland, Francis, Jr, his discourses reviewed, 360—commended, ib.—their subjects, ib.—quoted, 361—his distinctions of government, 362—his account of their influence, 363—of the relations of this country to Europe, 364—of its example, 366—his comparison of the Bible with the works of Homer, ib.

Wealth, true source of, formerly supposed to be gold and silver, 430.

Winter in Washington, a novel, reviewed, 99.

Witch of New England, an American romance, reviewed, 96—its defects, 97—inconsistencies in historical details, 97, 98—not destitute of merit, 98.

Wrixford, Allison, his mercantile penmanship, 452—commended, 452, 453.

ERRATA.

P. 106. l. 15 from top, for 'present' read 'purest.'—p. 112. l. 23, for 'salutary' read 'statutory.'—ib. l. 20. for 'in' read 'or.'—p. 139. l. 10 from bottom, for 'the benevolent' read 'its.'